

OVERVIEW

Dy-pack is a leading European producer of paper sacks with a commitment to:

- Implementing a UK wide collection service for returnable transit packaging.
- Further improve customer service by removing used packaging from their customer's sites.
- Reducing packaging costs.
- Reducing packaging waste compliance tax.
- Encouraging good environmental practices as defined in the wider circular economy concept.

CHALLENGE

German based manufacturer Dy-pack distributes paper sacks throughout Europe and beyond. The paper sacks are either packed flat on pallets or supplied on metal, plastic and cardboard reels stabilised by wooden chocks.

Dy-pack's challenge was to enhance customer service by arranging to take away the used transit packaging protecting the delivered sacks. Once inspected by RPS the intention was to return the collected packaging to Germany for reuse.

To deliver on their ambition Dy-pack sought a proven, proactive and cost effective collection organisation to work closely with both their customers and themselves to ensure maximum returns.

SOLUTION

Dy-pack's first step was to contract the services of RPS to manage the collection and return of their transit packaging to Germany. The next step was for Dy-pack to inform customers of the intent to collect and formally introduce RPS as their collection partner.

RPS then met with Dy-pack's customers to formally introduce the collection service and importantly understand their requirements in terms of collection frequency and individual site procedures. With customer expectations understood, collections could begin with the recovered components returned to the RPS depot for sorting, inspection, repair where necessary, prior to shipment back to Germany.

The full collection and return process planned and co-ordinated by RPS enables Dy-pack to concentrate more importantly on the day-to-day running of their business.
